Frequently Asked Questions

1. Who is eligible?

Juniors in any Emory school who will be completing an honors thesis or other capstone project during their senior year.

2. I am not completing an honors thesis Am I still eligible?

The award is not limited to honors program participants and any junior contemplating a senior capstone project is eligible.

3. I have not yet been accepted into an honors program. Can I still apply?

We understand that departments notify honors program participants at different times. Those not participating in the honors program should be contemplating a senior capstone project. Your honors program director or capstone advisor should submit a letter indicating you meet the honors/capstone requirement

4. How long must students stay in the country conducting their research?

There is not set time, but funds must be used between the end of exams in Spring 2018 and the start of classes in Fall 2018. Length of time in country will vary based on the requirements of the research and cost of living.

5. In what countries can students conduct research?

Students should propose to conduct research in the country that is essential to their proposed project. Note that proposals for research in relatively high risk locations will be considered on a case by case basis.

6. Does the grant fund equipment purchases?

The grant does not cover equipment purchases and funds are to support travel to research locations.

7. Does the proposed project deliverable have to be a written piece?

No, there is no written document requirement as the final project. The grant is open to all forms of project deliverables (performances, exhibits, etc.).

8. What is a C.V.?

A C.V. is a curriculum vitae, and is like a resume. Emory Career Center has a great guide on resumes and C.V.s. Please visit the link for more information.
